DotComSecrets X program is a step by step coaching program into internet marketing. It isn't a so called "miracle" system that promises untold riches just by signing up and spending X amount of dollars doing so. Once people have mastered the basics of this detailed and easy to understand program, they will be able to apply to any online business. DotComSecrets X is all about successfully marketing it online in three basic steps; how to build a list, how to build that list fast and for free, and how to use this list to make money; plus people get another 9 shortcuts.

A DotComSecrets X review reveals that this easy to follow, clever system explains the exact way that successful internet marketing businesses work. Following a proven formula – from the perfect squeeze page right through to pay per click advertising for a business doesn't cost the earth. No longer is it necessary to have the necessary knowledge to know what constitutes a successful internet marketing business and the crazy amount of funds necessary to hire the professional team people need to create it for them. Only after people who try this system for the first 30 days at a price of $1 and find it successful actually start paying for the coaching.

A reviewer from BarryRealMarketing.com says, "Russel Brunson's coaching course is, in our opinion, a turnkey process into successfully managing to market any product via the internet – and also provides great options and choices for those who might not already have an existing product or business to market. As well as providing you with the necessary website and internet information you need, it also gives you choices and options as to what you could successfully market should you not have already decided. If you're prepared to put in the work, DotComSecrets X could be just the tool you need to see you truly heading into the realm of the successful, self-employed internet entrepreneur. Best part is that it's only $1.00...go now if you are ready."
