Summit Cleaning Services gets "tech" with their new mobile website.

(Newswire.net -- February 22, 2013) Reno, NV -- Summit Cleaning Services launches their new mobile website. The new site is compatible with most smart phones, iPhones, iPads, tablets, and Blackberry devices.

Since more people are using the Internet with mobile devices, more companies are giving their prospects both options. Mobile devices are starting to overtake conventional laptops and desktop web surfing. Some reports say that by the end of 2014 there will be more searches made on mobile devices than standard computers. For small businesses, this means adaptation. And for small businesses that offer emergency services, this is mandatory adaptation.

Many frantic homeowners will have their mobile device handy before they reach their computer. When an emergency arises, mobile devices are much more likely to be used by people who own them. Mobile device users always have their device handy.

With a dedicated mobile friendly website, mobile users are instantly directed to a page that is more attractive for mobile users. It's easier to navigate and it provides an easy means of contact.

Stephen Jaenchen, owner of Summit Cleaning Services states, "We want to make sure we keep up with the technology. Many of our clients look for us on the web and new clients find us on the web too. With the surge in mobile device searches, we want to make sure we're giving people the best experience possible when searching for us online. We're now able to have a mobile friendly website that people will be able to easily contact us for an appointment. It's all about making our clients happy."
