(Newswire.net -- April 30, 2013) Kitchener, ON -- An ideal front entry door must possess many qualities to satisfy both the homeowner's comfort and their visitor's first impression. The selection process can be intimidating for new property owners, so a new wave of home product young professionals have surfaced in the industry to help promote the use of the best windows and doors in Kitchener.

Doorways reflect your style and choice of living. Do you opt for simplistic design or one with intricate panelling and windows to allow the entry of light? Whatever you choose as the homeowner it will give your guests, visitors and street passerby's a glimpse of the decision you made. "Front" applies as a double entendre.

So this leaves you with a difficult choice; one that is affected by variables such as capital available, if this is your first home, the size of the property, and your location.

"There are many considerations that are looked-over by homeowners when they set out to purchase a door. The top things on the list that I bring up are: security, style, budget and size. Everything else is secondary." says Mike Delaroche of Lifestyle Home Products, Canada's best windows and doors in Kitchener manufacturer and installer. Mike is a Regional Manager based in Ontario, but qualifies his knowledge-base in design and functionality to his ability to travel and see what's out there.

"I know my doors and windows but I definitely know my customers. Being able to travel for work and study which home products on the market are being installed has allowed me to understand my current and future customers better."

The industry leaders for replacement exterior doors have seen their fair share of technological upgrades and trends in the past decade. There are endless door options in material, window style, and composite versions. The industry has had decades to sort those possibilities out. But the advancements in door locking mechanisms and slick hardware design has made the business of replacement front doors boom.

"People like to stay current with technology, especially when it protects the home and doesn't fail. The replacement exterior door market, like all marketplaces, will see an exponential growth in security, and our company will be at the forefront." proudly states Mike.

There are reports of fingerprint scanners on door handles at hotels in South Korea, and the ability to unlock your home with NFC technology on your mobile device.

Mike chuckled at the reports, "We're not installing the really futuristic stuff just yet. I am aware of these breakthroughs and what they present for home security, and when North America widely adopts those door technologies, I'll be the first to let the consumers know."

Mike Delaroche enjoys the estimate process, and declares it being more of a friendly discussion about the customers favourite possession: their home. His company provides some of the best windows and doors in Kitchener, and he can be reached at:
