

Disney Execs Brace for Braces

Bob Ong July 15, 2013

In Florida, Orlando has certainly claimed the rights to “Hollywood” in its own right with Disney being at the heart and soul of this southern state. Appearance and camera certainly count for a lot and here in Orlando, Florida, Kendrick Orthodontics has seen their fair share of Disney executives who have come in for teeth straightening or orthodontic work.

(Newswire.net -- July 15, 2013) Orlando, FL -- Kendrick Orthodontics, has been found by many Disney World executives who pride themselves on their appearance and smile. Disney is probably as close a destination to Hollywood as exists on the East Coast and being in the performance business, teeth and smiles rank as high as the performances on stage.

Wearing braces used to be a stigma that was associated with adolescence, however, now adults are wearing retainers, invisalign (clear removable braces), and even permanent ones that come with different designs and color schemes. So what has occurred in the orthodontic market to experience this shift in usage? Well, certainly technology has played a large part in more and more adult demand for braces. The materials used and improved methods as far as their effectiveness has played the biggest role.

Also, the correlation between teeth straightening and the impact upon oral hygiene and tooth decay have melded closer and closer together. Jaw alignment or misalignment have prompted many adults to seek professional orthodontic help in order to stave off any longer lasting and more serious results down the road.

Kendrick Orthodontics is situated in Kissimmee and Sebring, Florida near Walnut Creek and contiguous to Orlando. They serve the greater Orlando regions including Davenport, St. Cloud, and Poinciana as well. Disney execs are certainly picky when it comes to their looks and they seek only those that they trust and that come with high marks in performance. Dr. James Kendrick has been in the business for over twenty years and works seven days a week sometimes keeping up with his busy and growing demand for better brace wearing options from people and families of all ages.

With the ability to fit more innocuous types of braces that working adults can wear during work and take out for special occasions, this option increases the interest from people that can ill afford anything to interfere with their lifestyles. Traditional styles of braces can now also hide the old look of metallic braces on the front of the teeth that most remember kids wearing as adolescents. Now, braces can be hidden on the inside of the teeth without looking unsightly and as important is the interference with food and eating for the patient/ client.
