Microwave Cover Handy Tool For Cooking

According to ConsumerReports.com, with the advances in technology, consumers are not only using microwaves to warm up food, but they are now using their microwaves as second ovens.

(Newswire.net -- November 20, 2014) Sanford, Florida -- Technology has come a long way over the years when it comes to microwave ovens. They are no longer only used to just warm up food, but according to ConsumerReports.com, consumers can now use microwaves to create an entire meal from scratch. TopBPAFree.com has a BPA free microwave cover that recently launched on Amazon.com, which can be used as a handy tool when using the microwave to create entire meals.

Many of the newest microwaves can offer a wide range of functions from convections, faster cooking times and even grilling options. One of the best characteristics to look for is to find one with a sensor. This helps prevent undercooking and turns off the microwave when the food is ready. The convection mode is used to provide browning of food similar to a conventional oven.

ConsumerReports.com offers several tips on how to put an entire dinner on the table with using a microwave. Here are two quick tips for cooking fish and vegetables.

Fish – Use thinner fish like sole, tilapia and flounder, these tend to turn out moist and tender. Simply put the fish in the microwave and use a microwave cover. Cook until the fish is a milky white and breaks apart easily.

Vegetables – Add 1-2 tablespoons of water to a bowl, season as you would like, then use your microwave cover to hold in the moisture and reduce splatters.

With any microwave cooking that may be done, it is always a great idea to have a microwave cover available to cover the food. This reduces the time and energy used as well as prevents splattering to eliminate time cleaning.

"I simply don't have time to cook huge meals anymore. I use my microwave all the time, and the last thing I want to do is spend time cleaning a dirty microwave that's why I love my microwave cover! It reduces cook time AND prevents splatter." said Mary M. a satisfied customer.

"Many people still use paper towels to cover their food in the microwave, but to really get the best results, a steam release BPA free microwave cover is the best solution. It will cook the food evenly, reduce cooking time, and prevent splattering." says Monika, from Top BPA Free.
