Ontario, Ontario -- The discovery of copper

pre-dates history. It is said to have been discovered from as early as 9000 BC. Records found in the oldest books to have ever been discovered, the Smith Papyrus, indicates that the metal was highly regarded for its usefulness to human health. Its healing properties are still highly regarded today, as evident in its use for arthritis pain relief.

Copper is the first metal to have ever been used by humans, and was mainly used to make pots, jewelry, tools and weapons. Its usefulness to the health of humans did not go unnoticed to the people as well, as it has been recorded on the books of Smith Papyrus, It is noted for its effectiveness in killing or inhibiting the growth of bacteria and other microorganisms.

The belief that the wearing of a copper bracelet as a remedy for arthritis existed from ancient times, as it was a popular folklore. This shed some light on the popular use of the metal in ancient times. Today, it is used as the main pain-relief ingredient of the world's best arthritis pain relief cream from the exclusive on-line distributor, World Wide Famous Products.
