Denton Storms Cause Roof Replacement Damage

If fall is anything like spring this year, Denton roofers stand to make record profits in 2015 with roof replacements from storm and hail damage.

(Newswire.net -- August 23, 2015) Flower Mound, TEXAS -- So far, 2015 is shaping up to be one of the most profitable years for Denton roofers who are busy providing roof replacement service to Denton residents. The spring 2015 season was very active, spinning tornadoes, dropping hail and damaging roofs all over Denton county. The fall storm season is just around the corner, worrying home owners but exciting Denton roofers with the possibility of even more roof replacement needs.

In 2015, there have already been several major storms in North Texas, specifically in Denton county. In May, storms ripped through Denton with hail and tornadoes ripping roofs off buildings and causing major damage to roofs. Blake Snow of First Out Roofing in Denton Texas, warned, "When hail damage or wind damage comes through an area, homeowners don't always call out a roofer to inspect their roof. That can be a mistake. Hail and wind can cause damage that is not apparent and over time, can cause major damage to a home when the roof begins to leak."

Hail or wind damage can be devastating to homeowners and cause millions of dollars in damages. In 2014, a storm ripped through Denton. High winds and baseball size hail caused over 50 million dollars in damage, much of which came from total roof replacements. Homeowners are advised to have their roof inspected for damage. If damage is found, a homeowner will put in a claim for damages and often, the insurance company will deny a total roof replacement. We talked to several roofers who advised homeowners to always work with a professional roofer and let them talk to your insurance company. According to Snow, "A roofer knows how to work with your insurance agent and get homeowners what they need. The insurance company will try to do the least possible. We represent the homeowner and can make a case for a total roof replacement if warranted."

The fall storm season is just around the corner and already, weather experts are predicting an active storm season for North Texas. 2015 may be well on its way to record numbers in both terms of storms and roof replacement profits for roofers in Denton, Texas.
