(NewsWire.net -- October 6, 2013) Dallas, Texas --

Some companies are intimidated by the high cost of consulting with a highly regarded website design firm, but Design Crowd has come up with a price tag any business can afford: Free.

Having built its reputation as one of the best website design firms focused on real estate sites, they announced that it is now expanding its focus to include many other industries.

And to make the transition go more smoothly, it currently is offering consultations for new clients at no charge.

The firm, based in Dallas, Texas, has been recognized for its work in helping Dallas area real estate firms expand their market share and attract new customers through the Internet.

Now they are bringing its particular brand of online magic to such industries as hospitality, retail, medicine, law, manufacturing, warehousing and many others.

Free consultations can be arranged simply by visiting the company's website.

Companies that work with them understand that customers are turning to the Internet to find the products and services they want. An estimated 70% of searches for local goods and services are now performed online via search engines and local directories.

So developing a business website that has the best web design, the most interactivity, the simplest, most approachable visitor experience is critical.

Only those businesses whose websites appear at the top of the local results pages on Google, Bing and other search engines are going to capture this growing pool of customers.

Design Crowd specializes in launching their clients' web pages to the very top of the most popular search engines. Their innovative Search Engine Optimization (SEO) services help companies rank for any keywords they pick and push them to the first page of Google within 30 days.

The results speak for themselves: Just one of their clients recently ranked 1,991 keywords on Page 1 of Google in the Memphis, TN, metropolitan area and another 4,545 keywords in the Minneapolis, MN, region.

Those kinds of numbers mean customers are making connections with their clients, which is why it has been recognized as the best SEO Company working online today.
