Cracked iPhone Screen

Many smartphone users have experienced a major problem with a cracked iPhone screen. Now, after the in-store screen fix rumor surfaced last week, Apple officially offers iPhone 5C screen replacements on-site.

(Newswire.net -- January 21, 2014) Miami, Florida -- Is your iPhone touch screen not working due to cracks? iPhone 5C owners can now access the $149 cracked iPhone screen repair service at Apple Stores. This service is being offered for Apple's new "budget" phone – iPhone 5C. However, the company's flagship iPhone 5S and the older-model iPhone 4S are still not eligible for the on-site screen replacements.

Offering on-site iPhone screen repairs for a cracked screen is a big policy change for the Apple Store. Before, a customer would need to ship his damaged iPhone to an off-site repair center in order to fix the broken screen. This process costs around $229.

Apple released iPhone 5C last September as their version of lower-cost smartphones. The move to offer screen repairs at Apple stores seems to be a response to the rising demand for third-party repair services – an option that is cheaper, but voids the iPhone warranty.

Paul Schiller, Apple's senior vice president of worldwide marketing, said that a smashed iPhone is considered out of Apple warranty, and that the repair option would cost less than buying a brand new device.

The new Apple store repair service is expected to be rolled out in other major Apple markets this week, except in Hong Kong and Canada.
