As of today, Christian Cafe boasts of a large following when it comes to active users of its dating network, and the management has taken time to study different classes of singles in the typical American society. In her observations on the increasing online search for faithful dates among the believers, Isabella J. J., the Dating Counselor of Christian Cafe, states that because only a few singles attend church today, it would be somewhat hard to find a date in such a religious environment. "As a result, most singles choose to avail themselves of Internet dating," she adds.

Furthermore, with respect to many Christian singles that have gotten burned in their dating experience, studies have revealed the causes of heartbreak and regrets that follow breakups. Isabella J. J., confirms, saying, "It's been noted that there are ninja singles in most Christian dating sites out there. These are people that post dishonest profiles so as to play a cheat on innocent users. This phenomenon is common to most free dating networks."

She points out, in her own opinion, that dating differs from Christian dating to a large extent. She then defines the latter as a step toward finding a person with whom one can build a lifetime relationship. Ordinary dating permits friendship with more than one persons in an effort to find someone that would be compatible with the seeker, she affirms.

Confirming the essence of the studies, Isabella J. J. concludes that it's in the best interest of the users of Christian Cafe so that they could pursue godly virtues that would make them a faithful date for other singles. "Singles should not just jump into dating anyone without an assurance of sincerity, spirituality, devotion, and attraction. They should be aware that Christian dating entails emotional investments," she advises.
