(Newswire.net -- October 17, 2014) Las Vegas, NV -- BRYK, a company that specializes in both women’s and men’s RFID protection accessories, has launched what is being termed a revolutionary product, designed to provide protection against identity theft. This stainless steel credit card holder is said to provide a level of comfort and protection that has never been experienced.

It is described as not only being stylish but protects credit cards from being unwittingly scanned by unscrupulous criminals who are looking for financial gain at the expense of an unknowing bystander. The stainless steel credit card holder is described as having classic lines and having a unique design which makes it ideal for traveling while being fashionable enough to go with any apparel. The wallets are also said to be made of corrosive resistant stainless steel which makes them suitable when traveling to places where metals may be at risk of corrosion. In addition to that, it is manufactured with other materials which are considered to be durable while helping to protect what matters most, the owner’s identity.

BRYK launched the stainless steel credit card holder as a solution to an increasing unwanted problem, which is the theft of personal information via the RFID scanners. Reports indicate that these devices are being used more often than not these days for identity theft.

The Stainless Steel Wallets are said to be fashionable for both men and women regardless of age. It is believed that they also make ideal gifts for Christmas, birthdays, Father’s day, Mother’s day or for persons who travel a lot abroad as well as cross country.

“I purchase two wallets. One for my wife and one for me...They will be perfect to our trip out of the country,” said Steve Martens, one of the many customers who gave the product positive reviews.

BRYK has launched a Stainless Steel Wallet that is not only geared towards security but is also thought to be sleek in design. Apart from its fashionable look, it is also said to be competitively priced compared to similar products. They are currently being sold on Amazon at a cost of $19.97. With every purchase of the stainless steel wallets from BRYK, customers are also privy to a free eBook.
