Nevada based accessory firm "Freddie and Sebbie" has recently revealed the launch of their most recent product on Amazon.com, stating that this automobile organizer has been especially developed to help parents have simpler access to a car organizer, that's affixed to the front Passenger seat, and not behind the driver.

(body) Company spokesman, Neil Speight, has recently verified the launch of the Freddie and Sebbie Car organizer, specifically sold on Amazon.com. He claimed... "This vehicle storage organizer is very much like the Freddie and Sebbie backseat storage organizer, yet has been especially adjusted to be made use of on the front Passenger seat, so aiding the motorist with much easier accessibility to anything needed on the journey, like a hand-held device or just getting a quick beverage when thirsty."

Neil clarified just how the concept came about in the first place... "You could say that our rear seat automobile organizer ended up being fairly popular, and a variety of outstanding reviews have recently been left on Amazon.com for others to view, but we could also see that parents were having access troubles while driving, especially if the kids in the back were unable to get to the storage organizer themselves. This triggered us to the concept of adjusting the item to be made use of on the Passenger front seat, so moms and dads can conveniently access anything required for their children or themselves."

The Freddie and Sebbie co-owner likewise stated that their initial rear seat vehicle organizer has recently been tested and recommended by nearly 100 moms and dads from all parts of the US, and validated that their most current item had been made to the highest criteria in quality, safety and integrity, along with having a lifetime replacement guarantee. He added... "This multipurpose Passenger seat car storage organizer will immediately assist keep the auto clean and mess free, and perfect for storing children's toy and accessories, an I-pad or cell phone, refreshments and snacks, pens and paper, magazines and computer games, and the list just goes on."

He explained that the car storage organizer had been developed to suit most cars, while being made from a durable fabric that would not scrape the car seats. Neil likewise stated that the Passenger seat organizer would permanently remain in one position, thanks to it's flexible leading strap, and that the item was easy to mount and clean. He added... "I was able to set up the organizer into the front Passenger seat without any troubles whatsoever, and I quickly managed to fill the storage organizer up with my devices and the kids toys. It has certainly made life a whole lot easier for me when I require something quickly for one of the twins, as before I had to stop the vehicle to find something in the rear seat organizer, but now I don't, as everything I require is so handy. The automobile storage organizer by Freddie and Sebbie is a real life saver, and can only be found on Amazon."
