

A Talent Showcase For New Crowdsourcing Opportunities

Chris Ryan March 09, 2015

For people with businesses who are looking for some great advice and guidance, we offer a host of business forum events during the day. These events are designed to help small businesses get their questions answered by a group of successful business owners

(Newswire.net -- March 9, 2015) Hawthorne, California -- For people in the world of creativity and the arts, finding the right venue to showcase work their work and build on their talents and connections is an essential part of success.

While there are a host of different places people can go to audition for music and acting in Hollywood, most people concur that having a place to showcase their talent or locate an investor for their business is important. In almost any business or industry having knowledge is important, but often who you know is just as pivotal as what you know. Certainly, there are millions of highly talented people over the years that just never got the break they needed to find true success.

To answer the call to help talented people achieve notoriety and make those important connections we have established a talent business forum known as Business On The Mic. Our primary focus at Business On The Mic is to offer talented people the venue they need to get their works, talent, ideas, businesses and creativity discovered. We offer a multi-faceted Business Forum, Mega Mixer resource and Talent Showcase where people of talent can come meet with investors, talent scouts and producers who are seeking talent.

Through our years in the industry, we have developed a group of powerful connections of people who are looking to either discover new talent or investors who are looking to invest in people or businesses. Their goal is to enable people to either start a business, grow and expand a business or increase their sales through their investment for a portion of the profits.

For people with businesses who are looking for some great advice and guidance, we offer a host of business forum events during the day. These events are designed to help small businesses get their questions answered by a group of successful business panelists that have the expertise to help take a business to the next level of success and notoriety nationwide and overseas.

These business forum events are usually coupled up with our talent seekers in the evening at the same venue. Here we bring together our exciting talent seekers with those talented individuals that are seeking to connect with producers, agents and other industry experts. This is all done in association with our entertainment company Hollywood Overlooked.

During our evening talent showcases, artists can perform all genres of music, acting and comedy in front of some of Hollywood's top executives in the entertainment industry. This includes producers and talent seekers from companies such as: Dreamworks, Sony, and Universal. Highly talented people will have a chance to audition and showcase their talent for a chance at getting a contract or land a deal for a few shows or a single show, movie, or event. Those people that are highly talented will have the possibility of going on tour or being in a major Hollywood film or land a spot in a TV series.

If you are truly interested in the opportunities we have to offer and wish to bring their talents or young businesses to the world, we welcome you to join our new Business On The Mic Special Membership. Doing so will allow you to enjoy all of our special offers, get invited to our special events and receive our great membership benefits and discounts. We trust you take your career seriously and our job is to help you get some serious attention for your efforts. We are dedicated to our work and believe there are many talented people and businesses that have much to offer the world if only they can make the right connections. For more information on our memberships go to:

Business on the Mic

2851 West 120th Street

Hawthorne, California 90250

424-646-1328

Info@businessonthemic.com

<http://www.businessonthemic.com/>

Source: <http://newswire.net/newsroom/pr/00087802-crowdsourcing.html>