(Newswire.net -- October 23, 2015) Las Vegas, LAS VEGAS -- To offer the assistance and aid parents need for developing their kid's learning abilities, the non-toxic bath toy in question has actually been specifically designed for moms and dads and families with autistic children or merely those with learning problems, though infants from several months old have actually additionally begun to have fun with the toy. Moms and dads are given all the excellent reasons to purchase this non-toxic toy according to over 250 Amazon validated reviews. A.S has actually said in their five star review: "This vibrant and attractive letters and numbers set helped our child learn the alphabet, and learn ways to count and spell. This toy additionally helps her to identify various colors, while having fun all the way to bedtime."

Nevada-based retail business spokesperson and co-director for Freddie and Sebbie , Mr Neil Speight, recently spoke of their bath toy's success during an online press conference. He explained how today's parents were looking to find children's toys not just for fun, but also educational. He added: "The majority of moms and dads probably understand that aside from playing, kids also enjoy discovering. The luxury 36 piece set of foam bath figures are perfectly designed to help them with both aspects. This luxury set makes kids' bath time a more relaxing and satisfying experience. Bath time is definitely a terrific learning chance that moms and dads shouldn't miss out on."

However moms and dads and grandparents of autistic kids have also offered their complete support for the academic bath toy made by Freddie and Sebbie. S.L, who additionally offered an optimum 5.0 from 5 stars, said that her Grand son really liked the numbers and letters. She includes: "My grand son is autistic and just turned 6 years old. He simply loves these foam numbers and letters, specifically the numbers. He likes to hold a set of numbers up and say 25, or 82, and so on. I'm sure you may have been expecting possibly an evaluation on a young child or pre-k youngster. Just know that these work well in the tub (although he enjoys taking them with him after getting out of the bath). The colors assist considerably for the visual part of learning, they do exactly what they should, and they help teach him to spell and count. And hey, they always put a smile on his sweet face!"

Aside from the toys' non-toxic function, the the Amazon Marketplace item description reveals that the letter and number set has actually been crafted using the finest, safest and highest quality materials ensuring dependability, security and quality. The bath foam numbers and letters by Freddie & Sebbie also includes a toy organizer, which can be easily hung on the shower unit.
