PresentationMastery

Master Giving Presentations & Learn to Sell to Any Audience - Whether You Are in the Same Room with Them or Not.

(Newswire.net -- January 5, 2016) Addison, Texas -- People who have ever experienced sweaty palms, dry mouth, and nervous tapping before giving a speech in front of a large group or when meeting with a new client are experiencing Glossophobia. Glossophobia, the fear of public speaking or presenting, is a very real fear that can cripple communication ability and hinder professional progress.

Whenever and however communication in front of an audience occurs, even if it is an audience of one and not in person, a presentation being made. Whether it's an idea, a product, service, or simply personal feelings, the message must be delivered with confidence and believability before a connection can be made and the communication be truly successful.

In the Online Learning Center's PresentationMastery, students will receive training from internationally known author, sales trainer, and business consultant Chuck Bauer in how to master the message and present to any size audience through over three hours of course material. Students will learn how to present to any audience, whether face-to-face, over the phone, or over the internet. The information includes understanding glossophobia, the listenable rate of speech, the power of body language, and engaging the audience, as well as developing perfect sales pitches, building powerful slideshows, presenting confidence every time, and how to give great presentations.

Upon registration, the student can login to his or her account from any computer or mobile device connected to the internet. There is a link to the each student's account page at the top of every page on this website. Within the account page, the student simply clicks on "My Courses" to view all of the Online Training Center programs that have been activated.

The student can complete the online course all at once or little by little. Progress will be tracked, and there is a quiz at the end of the lesson. The student also has access to other tools and resources to add to the online learning experience and use of the concepts learned.

Students who want other team members to receive training can receive the special discount available to organizations interested in this type of learning environment. Each additional user license will include access to the online course through a separate and unique login—giving them their own course progress, access to their own quizzes, and a certificate of completion with their name on it that can be downloaded and printed after they finish the course.

The 24/7 on-the-go Online Learning Center contains over 80 hours of sales-and-business-related content. Information can also be found on the blog and social media platform, and information is also available via the 24/7 Mobile App.
