(NewsWire.net -- January 24, 2019) -- A powerful new stock market tool has been announced by Stock Value, helping investors to take their portfolio to the next level. It allows them to work in the margin between market value and real value.

Stock Value has announced the launch of the Stock Value Screener, a powerful system that allows people to make wiser investments faster with smarter decision making. The site was founded by David Hall, who has been an active investor for most of his life, as a way to help people get involved and improve their financial stability.

More information can be found at: <https://stockvalue.org>

The site explains that David Hall has funded a commercial and residential real estate portfolio as well as a portfolio of businesses that he owns with his investing strategies. One of the lessons he wants to get across is that 99% of the things people here is bad advice.

He goes on to say that investing in stocks is not as difficult as most people would have interested parties believe. In fact, with the right tools and research, the process can become a lot easier, and investing becomes a fun strategy, as well as a form of financial planning.

The Stock Value site explains that one of the fundamental rules of investing is how to find the real value of a stock. The market value is never the true value, as it is based on greed and fear.

For an investor to be successful, they need to be able to determine the real value of stocks so they can uncover hidden gems. This will allow them to find the stocks that the rest of the market hasn't picked up on yet.

Another key lesson is learning when to buy and when to sell. When it comes to guessing the market, it can be highly beneficial to see what people in the know are doing.

This is where the Stock Value Screener can help. It offers a range of powerful features, including unlimited searches, a watch list to keep track of everything the user owns and everything they're interested in, and a huge range of stats from EPS to trading.

The proprietary formula helps investors to take their portfolio to the next level, working in the margin between market value and real value.
